

Airline Safety Infographic

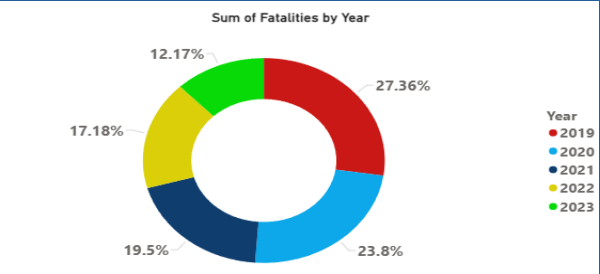

The above Bar graph shows that the number of fatalities was more than 1300 and has been decreasing over the years to less than 500.

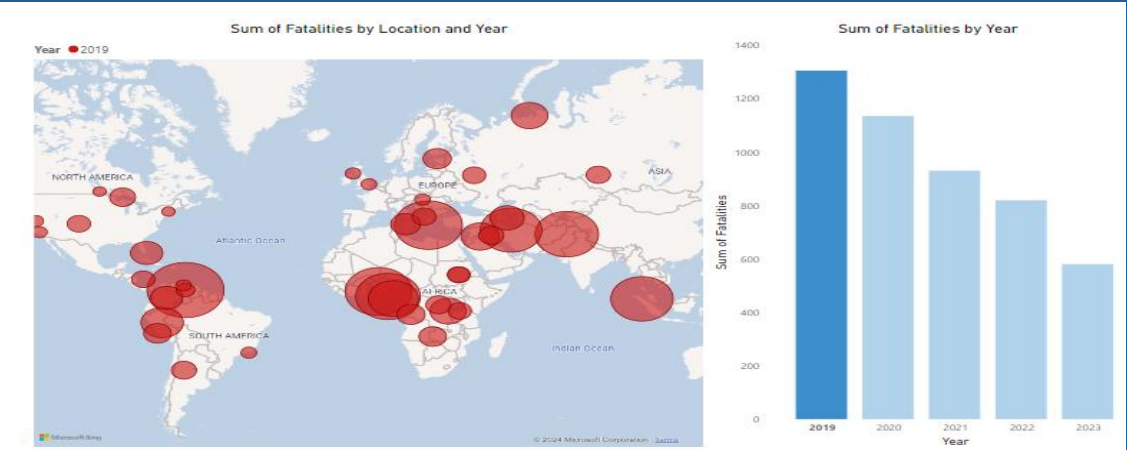

Adana, Turkey to Balad Airbase, Iraq route has the maximum number of fatalities. From this graph, We understand what needs to be fixed for these routes to reduce the fatality rate.

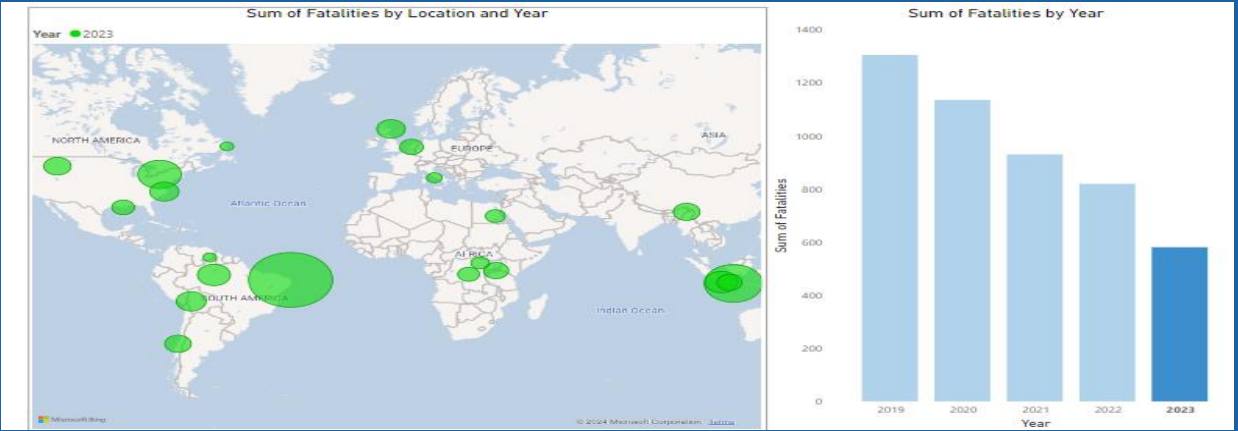

The Pie chart on the left side shows that the number of fatalities was around 27% in 2019 and reduced to around 12% in 2023, which makes airlines a safer option for travel.

The Donut Chart on the left side shows that the number of fatalities was around 27% in 2019 and reduced to around 12% in 2023, which makes airlines a safer option for travel.

The number of fatalities in the year 2019 is depicted with red dots and the size shows the relative number of fatalities that occurred in various regions.

The green dots show the number of fatalities in various regions for the year 2023, where we see the amount and size of the green dots are drastically reduced when compared to the red dots in the chart for 2019. Also, the right-side bar chart clearly shows the decrease in fatalities each year.